Patriots sign wr john jiles to practice squad.

The New England Patriots announced the signing of wide receiver John Jiles to the practice squad on Tuesday. Jiles was originally signed by the New York Giants as a rookie free agent on May 10. He was released by the organization on August 25. He showed sparks of his playmaking ability during his collegiate career. As a senior, he recorded 66 receptions for 1,255 receiving yards and 16 touchdowns at West Florida in 2023. Jiles started all 12 games in his final year with the program. The Patriots are looking to get more production out of the wide receiver position. They currently have 390 receiving yards at the position in total and rank last in the NFL in total offense. The Patriots offense needs a jolt, and it seems as though they are trying to find any sort of means to get it. Jiles will have an opportunity to add depth to a position that desperately needs it. On Tuesday afternoon, the team announced the signing of wide receiver John Jiles to the practice squad. Jiles, 24, is a rookie out of Division-II West Florida. Last fall Jiles set a school record with 1,255 receiving yards on 66 catches. He caught 16 touchdowns for the Argonauts. He went undrafted this spring, and spent the summer with the New York Giants. In three preseason games Jiles caught two passes on seven targets for 41 yards. The Giants released Jiles during final roster cuts. Kevin R. The Patriots have a number of teams ahead on the schedule with good size at wide receiver including the Houston Texans, Jacksonville Jaguars, New York Jets, Tennessee Titans, and Los Angeles Rams. With this signing the Patriots now have two wide receivers on their practice squad. Jiles joins Matt Landers, who was initially claimed off waivers late in training camp. The team also currently has six wide receivers on the active roster - and Kendrick Bourne will be eligible to return from PUP starting next week.
