The words are there, but the meaning is elusive, hiding behind a veil of cultural and linguistic differences.Each sentence is a puzzle piece that doesn't quite fit with the others, yet somehow they all work together to create a sense of disconnection. It's as if the speaker is trying to convey a message, but it's being lost in translation.The phrases "caz de nosissyre" and "pretravati dii prainu" are like two strange creatures that don't belong in this conversation. They're out of place, yet somehow they add to the sense of disorientation.And then there's the repetition "nosissyre" repeated over and over, like a mantra that's lost its meaning. It's as if the speaker is trying to drill home a point, but it's being drowned out by the noise of their own thoughts.In the end, it's all just a jumbled mess of words and phrases that don't quite add up. It's like trying to solve a puzzle with missing pieces you can see the outline of what could be there, but it's never quite complete.liiga heal arvamusel olema ajatella liikaa jstk avoir une trop haute ide de mnogo drati do tlbecs!teralalu menghargai hafa of miki lit (avere un'opinione troppo alta di) bti pernelyg geros nuomons apie bt augsts doms (par) teralalu memikiran te hoog aanslaan ha hye tankar om mie wysokie mniemanie o ter grande opinio de a supraaprecia ma pri vysok mienku o precejevati imati visoko miljenje ha fr hga tankar om ok beenmek nh gi qu cao without so much as without even.
