

Click to verify

As someone who has gotten groceries delivered since the beginning of the pandemic, I've put a lot of thought into whether online grocery delivery is worth it. It saves me a trip to the store, including the time I spend wandering the aisles (plus, the gas it takes to get there and back).However, theres a lot more to think about, like impulse buys, couponing and more. We break it down for you, no matter which of the stores offering grocery delivery and pickup you decide to order from.Benefits of Online Grocery DeliverySave TimeWith all of us trying to do as much as possible in a day, having groceries delivered could save you 53 hours per year. (Yes, the reported average shopping time for most Americans is 41 minutes per trip, with 1.6 weekly visits.) This means that you can dedicate more time to things you enjoy.Not only will you be able to skip out on the trip to the store, you'll probably save a little time with suggestions based on previous orders. With this, you can quickly add your regulars from the previously bought or recently viewed sections of the site.Save GasNo need to fire up the car and load up the kids. Depending on how far the grocery store is from your house, you can add upand with online grocery delivery you dont need to waste any of yours. A lot of times, the shopper will stop for multiple customers at once, so maybe youre even helping out emissions by not making your own individual trip to the store.Dont Forget Anything on Your ListI think that online grocery delivery is worth it because Im notorious for forgetting things. Whether I forget to write it down, or simply miss it as Im browsing, I always manage to make it home without everything I set out for.Yes, its still possible to forget something when youre adding things to the cart online. However, you can check your pantry while you online shoppingsomething you cant do while youre physically at the store!Another plus? If you have the app on your phone, you can easily add an item right when it pops into your head, and build up your virtual cart until youre ready to order. This way, you dont need to sit down and make a list 30 minutes before you go to the store, trying to remember everything thats crossed your mind this week.If you like to make lists, count on one of these grocery shopping apps that make creating and managing them a breeze.Skip Impulse BuysSureyou may be worried about delivery fees. (Although sometimes, you can skip that cost by ordering the minimum dollar amount.) However, online shopping can help you focus on your list instead of being distracted by the tempting treats placed on the endcaps or at the checkout. When you dont see those chocolate chip cookies, you cant be tempted to buy them. To save even more, check out all our tips for budget-friendly grocery shopping.Take Advantage of Weekly Deals!The idea of missing out on in-store specials has you afraid to try grocery delivery, dont fret. There are online specials, too. (Including some that brick-and-mortar shoppers wont get.) No more driving to two or three different supermarkets to find items were advertised in the weekly circular.

Instead, with a click of a button, you'll add all the sale items to your virtual cart. Use Easy Clipless CouponsSearching through weekly flyers, clipping coupons and remembering to bring them to the store can be daunting, especially if couponing isnt your thing. Some grocery chains make it simple for you to use manufacturers coupons as you online shop. Apply them to items in your virtual cart with ease! Not only will that save you money, but time as well. (If couponing is your thing, here are some honest magic couponing secrets.)Filter Based on Dietary RestrictionsIf you have special dietary restrictions, most shopping sites allow you to filter or search products based on categories such as gluten-free, kosher, organic or even sugar-free. This allows you to focus on making our best gluten-free recipes instead of reading labels endlessly.Drawbacks of Online Grocery DeliveryOscar Wong/Getty ImagesNot-So-Perfect Replacements and AlternativesFor some stores like Target, you can opt into receiving texts from your shopper if you desired item is out of stock. Often, they'll send you a picture of your replacement choices, and you can let them know what you'd like as your substitute. If the brand doesnt matter to you, you can also set preferences to let the shopper pick the best alternative.Admittedly, sometimes the shopper doesnt do a good job of showing you your options. Or, you may not find out that a key ingredient to your recipe was out of stock until the groceries hit your doorstep, making it difficult to prepare the meal you had planned. It all depends on the communication skills of the shopper.Not Picking Your Own ProduceOne of the most frustrating parts of online grocery delivery is not being able to pick your own produce. You cant always count on your shopper to pick the best option, and they also cant read your mind, eithermaybe you wanted an extra-firm avocado to make guacamole a few days from now, or extra-ripen bananas to make banana bread tonight. However, if you opt into communications from your shopper, you can usually let them know what youre looking for. In my experience, they'll try their best to grab what you need.Keep in mind, you could also avoid your produce shopping by subscribing to a produce delivery serviceinstead of relying on stores like Walmart, Kroger or Aldi for the best fruits and veggies.Delivery Fees, Minimums + TippingYes, you should tip your grocery shopper. If my shopper does a good job and is communicative with me about replacements and out-of-stock items, Ill tip 20%which can definitely add up with a big order. Keeping track of how much youre spending on groceries and the tip, and comparing it with the cost of gas and the amount of time you spend at the store will help you determine if online grocery shopping is worth it for you and your family.In addition to the tip, delivery fees can also add up. However, for many stores, you can get a membership, which will keep you at a flat rate per year, instead of charging you per trip. At Target, you can choose to pay $9.99 per order, or get a membership for $10 a year. I definitely order groceries more than 10 times a year, so its worth it for me to get a membership (plus, I split it with my roommatewhich makes the deal even better).Finally, delivery minimums can prohibit you from grabbing only a few essentials in your online order. At Target, a minimum delivery is $35. If I put in an order every two weeks, I usually have no problem hitting that. However, if youre the type of person that hits the grocery store for milk every few days, you might find that delivery minimums inhibit your regular stocking of the fridge. Deep down, does anyone really enjoy shopping for groceries? Grocery shopping is one of those annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is online grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing to think about when you get home.

So its not like things are going to switch out if Peanut Butter for Skippy, they also try their best to deliver what they call "a perfect order," since they want you to keep using the service. "We focus a lot on ensuring that customers get what they ordered, when they order it, with only appropriate substitutions when those are absolutely necessary, and more.For more smart shopping tips, savings hacks, and Walmart deals, download theKCL app or textHACKSto 57299.Walmart delivery is handled by Spark drivers who bring your order to your door.When you place an order for Walmart delivery, a Walmart employee will be the one shopping for your items in the store. Then, a driver from the third-party delivery company Spark picks up your order and brings it right to your door.Not every address is eligible for Walmart Delivery, though.If you live more than 10 - 15 minutes away from a Walmart store, your home address might not be eligible for Walmart same-day grocery delivery. Each store sets their own delivery radius, so the mileage radius will depend on your local store.KCL TIP: To check your address, select a product and look under How do you want your item? section to see if Delivery is an option. You may even be eligible for Walmart drone delivery in certain states (like Texas)!Walmart online grocery prices are the same as in stores.Its important to know that Walmart grocery online prices are the same prices you'd pay in a store. They never inflate their grocery prices for delivery or pickup orders.Heres what Walmart says on their Terms and Conditions page:Pricing for Walmart Pickup and delivery items will be the same prices as if you shopped in the store that packs and delivers the items. If an item's price changes between the time you place your order and the day your order is packed for delivery, we will charge you the lower price. - Walmart.comIf Walmart has to substitute a store brand for a brand-name item and the substituted item is cheaper than the monthly fee. For example, Walmarks annual subscription fee is $98 per yearthats just $8.16 per month. But if you buy a monthly subscription, plan on paying $12.95 per month. Whats the cheapest overall? Honestly, prices change so often, we cant pinpoint the absolute cheapest for you. But dont forget the power of Shti and Instacart. If you factor in the number of locations they deliver to, the variety of stores (pharmacy, pet store, grocery) they partner with, their delivery time, product prices and membership feesthey consistently rank near the top. Does Online Grocery Shopping Save Money? Yep, it definitely can. If youre someone who gets tripped up in the checkout line by impulse purchases, then yeah, youll probably save every single weekjust by not setting foot in a grocery store at all. But if you prefer shopping in person, picking out your own papaya, and starting a good deal in the faceonline grocery shopping would be a useless expense to you. No matter where you fall, take some time to really think through what the total cost of grocery delivery would look like for you. Lets say your usual weekly trip to the grocery store (impulse buys and all) totals $150. Now you have a price point to compare to grocery delivery. If you know the delivery fees cost $7 and you'll tip $18, then that means you have to delete $25 of impulse buys to break even. And lets be honest, you could probably cut back even more than that! Grab your last grocery receipt and look at all the items you could do without (like those chocolate pretzels they were giving out as samples and you just had to grab a bag). If you really pay attention, you can probably shave off more than a few itemsthich means that even with the added costs that come with online grocery delivery, you could still save money. (Dont forget to count the gas you'd save by not driving anywhere!) Also, grocery delivery or not, you should meal plan. Making a plan for every meal and every snack is how you really save money on groceries! Download Rachel Cruze's Meal Planner and Grocery Savings Guide for tips and tricks on how to do this well. Bottom line! Youve got to do whats best for you, your lifestyle and your budget. Its a juggling act for sure but take the time to crunch the numbers so you know what works best for you. Use our free budgeting app, EveryDollar, to help you stay on top of all your grocery spending. Take a look and see if adding grocery delivery to the mix throws a wrench in your budgetor if it actually helps you spend less.

pretty affordable and easy to use (and doesnt require you to leave the house like you have to with Walmart pickup). Instead of placing your order through Instacart or DoorDash, you order your items directly from Walmart, which means the price you pay for items is the same as it'd be if you shopped in store. But unless you're a paid Walmart Plus member, you'll pay a delivery fee of $7.95 - $9.95 for every order. And you'll also be expected to leave your delivery driver a tip for their effort. I've rounded up everything you need to know about how Walmart delivery works, how much to tip your driver, if a few members of our team weighed in!) how to get in-home delivery service, and more.For more smart shopping tips, savings hacks, and Walmart deals, download theKCL app or textHACKSto 57299.Walmart delivery is handled by Spark drivers who bring your order to your door.When you place an order for Walmart delivery, a Walmart employee will be the one shopping for your items in the store. Then, a driver from the third-party delivery company Spark picks up your order and brings it right to your door.Not every address is eligible for Walmart Delivery, though.If you live more than 10 - 15 minutes away from a Walmart store, your home address might not be eligible for Walmart same-day grocery delivery. Each store sets their own delivery radius, so the mileage radius will depend on your local store.KCL TIP: To check your address, select a product and look under How do you want your item? section to see if Delivery is an option. You may even be eligible for Walmart drone delivery in certain states (like Texas)!Walmart online grocery prices are the same as in stores.Its important to know that Walmart grocery online prices are the same prices you'd pay in a store. They never inflate their grocery prices for delivery or pickup orders.Heres what Walmart says on their Terms and Conditions page:Pricing for Walmart Pickup and delivery items will be the same prices as if you shopped in the store that packs and delivers the items. If an item's price changes between the time you place your order and the day your order is packed for delivery, we will charge you the lower price. - Walmart.comIf Walmart has to substitute a store brand for a brand-name item and the substituted item is cheaper than the original, you'll only pay the cost of the cheaper item. But if the substituted item is more expensive than the original, youre going to have to pay the list price for the more expensive substitution. This is a Walmart grocery policy change as of September 2022. In most cases, if youre buying a brand-name item (like Mrs. Butterworths maple syrup) and its unavailable, Walmart grocery delivery will substitute a store-brand item, (like Great Value syrup). Plus member, you'll pay a delivery fee of $7.95 - $9.95 for every order. And you'll also be expected to leave your delivery driver a tip for their effort. I've rounded up everything you need to know about how Walmart delivery works, how much to tip your driver, if a few members of our team weighed in!) how to get in-home delivery service, and more.For more smart shopping tips, savings hacks, and Walmart deals, download theKCL app or textHACKSto 57299.Walmart delivery is handled by Spark drivers who bring your order to your door.When you place an order for Walmart delivery, a Walmart employee will be the one shopping for your items in the store. Then, a driver from the third-party delivery company Spark picks up your order and brings it right to your door.Not every address is eligible for Walmart Delivery, though.If you live more than 10 - 15 minutes away from a Walmart store, your home address might not be eligible for Walmart same-day grocery delivery. Each store sets their own delivery radius, so the mileage radius will depend on your local store.KCL TIP: To check your address, select a product and look under How do you want your item? section to see if Delivery is an option. You may even be eligible for Walmart drone delivery in certain states (like Texas)!Walmart online grocery prices are the same as in stores.Its important to know that Walmart grocery online prices are the same prices you'd pay in a store. They never inflate their grocery prices for delivery or pickup orders.Heres what Walmart says on their Terms and Conditions page:Pricing for Walmart Pickup and delivery items will be the same prices as if you shopped in the store that packs and delivers the items. If an item's price changes between the time you place your order and the day your order is packed for delivery, we will charge you the lower price. - Walmart.comIf Walmart has to substitute a store brand for a brand-name item and the substituted item is cheaper than the original, you'll only pay the cost of the cheaper item. But if the substituted item is more expensive than the original, youre going to have to pay the list price for the more expensive substitution. This is a Walmart grocery policy change as of September 2022. In most cases, if youre buying a brand-name item (like Mrs. Butterworths maple syrup) and its unavailable, Walmart grocery delivery will substitute a store-brand item, (like Great Value syrup). Plus member, you'll pay a delivery fee of $7.95 - $9.95 for every order. And you'll also be expected to leave your delivery driver a tip for their effort. I've rounded up everything you need to know about how Walmart delivery works, how much to tip your driver, if a few members of our team weighed in!) how to get in-home delivery service, and more.For more smart shopping tips, savings hacks, and Walmart deals, download theKCL app or textHACKSto 57299.Walmart delivery is handled by Spark drivers who are independent contractors, so tips are always appreciated. You can add a tip during the checkout process or within 24 hours of receiving your delivery.As for how much to tip your driver, it depends on the time and effort required to deliver your order, not necessarily the dollar amount spent. For example, delivering $100 worth of bottled water is a lot more cumbersome than delivering $100 worth of meat. Also consider if they'll need to climb a lot of stairs or carry heavy items to deliver your order.How much should you tip with Walmart delivery?When I asked the team at The Crazy Coupon Lady what they usually tip their Walmart delivery drivers, heres what they had to say: usually do a dollar amount, like $2 - $3. Mairyn, Boise, IDI usually base mine on how large of an order I have. Or, if I order bulkier things like cases of water requiring multiple trips to bring to my door from their car, I'll tip higher. But anywhere in the range of $5 - $10 is what I do.

Rachel, Kissimmee, FLI personally do $2 - $3 if Im ordering. My wife does 5%. Kirk, Roseville, CAI do a set dollar amount depending on the order. I found that if you do a percentage andtheresstuff out of stock, it reduces their tip. Alana, Tampa, FLI manually calculate a percent of the ordered total (usually comes out to around 20%, but sometimes higher when things go OOS). Christian, Seattle, FLWalmart does offer Express delivery if you need your items in 3 hours or less, and the service is available from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. But theres no getting around the extra fees you'll pay for that convenience they apply even with Plus membership.For an additional $5, you can get your order delivered in 3 hours or less. For an additional $10, you can get Express delivery in 1 hour or less. Remember that those fees are in addition to any standard delivery fees that apply.Ugrade your Plus membership for $7 a month to get groceries delivered to your fridge.With Walmarks InHome service, a Walmart associate will actually put your groceries in the fridge for you and you dont even have to leave a tip. You can also arrange to have your Walmart returns picked up from your house.You can add InHome service to an existing Plus membership for an extra $7 a month, or sign up for a new InHome membership (which includes all the perks of Plus) for $19.95 a month or $138 a year. If you havent had a Walmart Plus subscription in the past, you can try the InHome service free for 30 days.KCL TIP: You will need to have a smart lock or keypad in order for the Walmart team member to access your home, but Walmart does offer a promo code for a free myQ Smart Garage Control. If you already have a keypad on your home or garage, just link it in the InHome app.How Walmart Delivery WorksStep 1: Add items to your virtual cart.The easiest way to place your Walmart delivery order is with the Walmart app (download for iOS / Android). You can also place your order online at Walmart.com.Remember, if you have a Walmart+ membership, youll need to add at least $35 worth of items to your cart to unlock your free delivery perk.Step 2: Reserve a 1-hour pickup window.Once youre finalized your online cart, you'll choose Delivery and select a 1-hour pickup window.Include any delivery instructions for your driver like Leave on the front porch.KCL TIP: Since time slots can fill up quickly, make sure you select your nearest Walmart location for delivery and select your time slot BEFORE adding items to your online cart. This will hold your delivery time slot for one hour.Before you place your order, you can opt to allow for substitutions (or not) for each item. I always recommend you allow them. If an item you ordered is out of stock before your order gets filled, Walmart will substitute a similar item. You can reject substituted items right up until the shopper completes your order. Rejected items and their charges will be removed from your order.Walmart Grocery will keep you updated via email and text.Step 3: Place your Walmart grocery order.Once youve completed the checkout process, youll place your order. You can track your order status (Placed, Shipping, On the Way, or Delivered) within the app or through your Walmart account online.Okay, earlier I said the single best thing about Walmart grocery delivery is that they dont inflate their in-store prices for online orders. I lied about that being the best part. This is pretty good, too.After you place your initial order, Walmart grocery allows you to make changes to your order, including adding and removing items, up to three hours and 15 minutes before your delivery. I think my average number of edits is about 14.If you placed an order for a future delivery date and time, you can reschedule up to the day before your delivery date. You cant reschedule a same-day delivery, though. Sign in to your account and select Purchase history to verify the exact cutoff time for making changes in your area.How to Save on Walmart Delivery!If youre new to Walmart grocery delivery, you can enter a Walmart promo code during checkout to save at least $10 on your first order of $50 or more. Here are a few of the current offers.TRIPLE10: $10 off your first three orders of $50 or moreTRIPLE20: $20 off your first three orders of $50 or more (select customers only)WOWFRESH: $10 off your first order of $50 or moreThese Walmart promo codes wont apply to alcohol purchases, though.Get a free 30-day trial with free cancellation.Want to give Walmart delivery a try?

They offer a free 30-day trial for their Walmart Plus membership that you can cancel anytime at no cost. So for a month, your orders of $35 or more would arrive with zero delivery fees!Dont miss out on Ibotta rebates just because you're not shopping in-store. Heres how you can earn with Ibotta: if you have already done so, download the Ibotta app. Go in to your account (or create one). Then navigate to the Walmart page and select Link Walmart account. You also need to have a debit credit card as one of your Ibotta payment methods. Thats it! When youre ready to order groceries for delivery, open the Ibotta app and load theIbotta product offers (must always be done first!), and then tap the Walmart page and shop. Once you check out, Ibotta will verify your purchase and add any money earned from the product offers to your Ibotta account within 24 hours.Top Questions About Walmart Delivery1. Does Walmart delivery take manufacturer coupons?No, Walmart grocery doesnt accept paper or digital manufacturer coupons for delivery orders. You cant use coupons on Walmart pickup orders, either.2. Are there restrictions on my delivery time?No, with a Walmart Plus plan, you have access to any available delivery time slot.3. Will Walmart price match competitors for delivery?Unfortunately, no. The Walmart price match policy allows for price matching in certain cases, but it doesnt include grocery delivery.4. What forms of payment does Walmart accept for delivery?Walmart Grocery accepts credit and debit cards, Walmart gift cards, EBT cards, PayPal, and Affirm. Cash or checks arent allowed for Walmart grocery delivery.5. Can I have an order delivered to a different address?Yes, Walmart will deliver to your home, office, or other location (if available in the area) for no additional cost.6. Can Walmart deliver my prescriptions?Not through the regular delivery service. The only delivery service Walmart offers for prescriptions is their Mail-Order Pharmacy.7. Can I purchase alcohol with Walmart grocery delivery?Because Walmart Grocery must comply with individual states alcohol and liquor laws, your ability to purchase alcohol will vary based on where you live. If alcohol delivery is permitted in your area, you'll be required to show a valid photo ID and provide a signature confirming you are age 21 or over.8. What if I get bad produce from Walmart grocery delivery?Walmart guarantees satisfaction on every grocery delivery item, including produce. Call Customer Care (1-800-924-9206) to report any issues and request a full refund. You can even take your e-receipt into a Walmart store and make the same refund request. Walmart says theres no need to take the damaged produce with you to the store.9. How do I get an itemized receipt from Walmart grocery delivery?Walmart automatically emails you an itemized digital receipt with every grocery delivery order. You can also look up your digital receipt under Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online the right option for you? There are lots of pros and cons that you have to look at for your lifestyle and your budget. So, lets dig into a few. Pros of Grocery Delivery You spend less time socializingan introverts dream! Lets be honest. Some people just dont like to be around other people. That doesnt mean they're bad people. Its just that idle chitchat at the grocery store is at the very bottom of their priority list. Quite frankly, grocery delivery is a dream come true for anyone who prefers to avoid groups of people. You can double-check the groceries you already have. How many times have you bought stuff at the grocery store only to get back home and discover you already had it in the back of your pantry? If you buy groceries online, you can actually go check your fridge, pantry and cabinets as youre ordering to see what you already have on hand. Yep, we know you can do this any time youre making a grocery list, but somehow it seems easier when youre ordering your groceries online. You can stick to the list and cut out impulse spending. Nothing will derail your grocery budget like some good, old-fashioned impulse buys. You walk down the snack aisle and suddenly remember your obsession with Cheez-Its, which reminds you that you really need some fruity cream cheese to go with those bagels in your cart, which also reminds you that you should pick up some everything bagel seasoning while youre at it. In the spice aisle, you start wondering if youre out of cinnamon. . . you probably are. Better pick some up just in case. After all, youve been meaning to make your moms oatmeal cookie recipe. Oh, waityou need oatmeal! And maybe some new flavored coffee to wash it down. Sound familiar? If youve ever done this, youre not alone. Our research shows more than a third of shoppers in the U.S. admit to making at least one impulse purchase in the last three monthsthe majority of which were food items found while shopping in a store. You can edit items you dont need. This is one of the biggest perks of online shopping! Think about when youre shopping online for clothingyou toss a couple shirts, a few jeans and a pair of shoes into your virtual cart. But when you get to the online checkout, you come to your senses and realize all you really need is the shoes. Since you were shopping online, it was easy to look at the total and edit things out, right? The same goes for grocery delivery and ordering online. You get to see the grand total before youre stuck footing the bill. That way, you can get rid of the groceries you dont need (like those pesky impulse buys!) and delete items to make sure you stay within your grocery budget. Its more convenient. When it comes down to it, buying groceries online is easier just is. And as busy as we all are these days, sometimes its just worth it to get your groceries delivered and have one less thing haunting your to-do list. Think about it. You can shop at 11 p.m. in your pajamas after the kids have gone to bed. You can pick your delivery time for the next day, based on your scheduleusually a two-hour time slot.Plus, you can avoid checkout lines and parking hassles. A true lifesaver! Cons of Grocery Delivery All the delivery fees and service charges add up. This is probably the most annoying little chores that has to be repeated too.Just like cleaning the house and brushing your teeth, no matter how many times you take care of it, you still have to do it again. . . eventually. Thank goodness someone came up with a genius idea of grocery delivery! Now, you can go about your day and your groceries just magically show up at your house. But is grocery delivery worth it and can it really save you any money? Lets find out. What Is Grocery Delivery? Plain and simple, its just like it soundssomeone else takes care of your grocery shopping list for you and delivers it to your door (for a fee, of course). You never have to leave your house if you dont want to. You can stay cramped out in your comfy sweatpants and wait for the groceries to arrive. Its pure magic. Why Grocery Shop Online? The biggest reason to grocery shop online is because its so flat-out convenient and easy. You pick out the item you want and pay for it and then everything is delivered to your doorstep (or you can pick it up curbside at the store). Easy stuff. Still, is buying groceries online